MAKING PICTURES

SBCC member Jim McKinnis is featured on page 75 of the July, 2006 issue of Popular Photography. Not for the beautiful picture illustrating the article, War on Photographers, but because he was arrested for taking it. Daily Breeze readers will remember the incident about Jim being a terrorist suspect for shooting the Exxon-Mobile refinery in the early morning of April 17, 2006. The Breeze asked for reader's comments, and published only those which criticized Jim's action. My letter, commending his quest for a better photograph, was not published. The article went on to point out the risk of photographing possible terrorist targets in the present atmosphere of homeland security, especially with a tripod.

We belong to the best camera club in Southern California for the purpose of making better pictures, and admiring those who do so. Many of our members take long trips and take long hikes in order to bring us their best. We give each of them our whole hardy support.

On August 14th, we will view the winners of the S4C Salon contest, which is happening in Rosemead this weekend, July 8 and 9th. Come see those judged the best from submittals from around the world.

Bob Houston, editor

Congratulations to those who submitted photos for the scavenger hunt. The task was difficult and time consuming. The final results proved it to be a very close race:

1. Mathilde Gianferrera 49 points
2. Snehen du Kar 47
3. Bill Berry 46
4. Frank Goroszko 46
5. Ron Discipulo 45
6. Betsy Treynor 43

President John Bohner made the comments and the scores, so blame him. Perhaps we will get a bigger group of brave photographers next year.
